

Essay About My Best Friend

In this rapidly changing world that we are living in, good friends are really hard to find. Old values have been forgotten, and new ones constantly change. Amidst this temporary world, having someone permanent by your side is a great thing. I feel lucky to have several friends who have stuck with me. However, I have one particular friend who I really love. His name is Ray. I am extremely proud of my best friend.

Ray comes from a very respectable family in our town. His father is a landlord. We were classmates when we were still in school. He was one of the best students in the class. He is really amazing because he can understand things pretty quickly. He is active and bright, and very punctual too! He is also respectful and obedient, soft-spoken, and good in studies.

He is naturally very bright. He also takes keen interest in what is happening around him, especially with regard to current affairs. Because of him, I become aware of what's going on with the world because he also discusses with me some of the most important issues that happened during the day. He is direct, yet impartial. He is broadminded, tolerant and cooperative.

At times, he asks me to go with him to watch movies in theater. Even if I have watched it myself already, he still compels me to go. We have been friends for more than 10 years already, and I have seen him grow. I have seen him cry a lot of times, and have seen him disappointed about many things. But I admire his courage.

I couldn't ask for another best friend than Ray. He motivates me to become a better person every day. I may have other friends in our circle, but the bond that we share is that of being brothers. This may have come naturally given that both of us were the only children of our respective families.

Ray has seen me grow as well. He always teases me because it seems that I am the happy-go-lucky type of person. However, he never demands for me to change, never ask for anything I would not want to do, and he understands me even better than myself. I really hope that this friendship will go beyond the years of our youth.
